

When Bet is left reeling by the death of her husband she longs for a fresh start. Bet's answer seems to come from her family who suggest a move from London to rural Suffolk. The only catch is that Bet must share a house with her daughter Nell, son in law Bernie and her difficult sister Pol and brother in law Pete. The rest of the family begin to settle into the slower pace of village life but Bet struggles until she meets the dark and charming Simon Morris, the cousin of a local landowner. Despite his bad reputation and her family's objections they begin a love affair. As she becomes the talk of the town Bet finds a "no strings" relationship hard to deal with. She starts to ask herself some difficult questions. Is the handsome Simon capable of commitment? Is Bet capable of starting again? Or is she just kidding herself? A Change of Pace is a moving drama about love, loss and starting again.
